Vortical Gust Interaction of Morphing Foils with Graded Chordwise Flexibility

Hibah Saddal, Chandan Bose*
University of Birmingham
*Email: c.bose@bham.ac.uk

Distributed flexibility enables a wing section to deform passively in response to an impinging vortex ring, thereby reducing lift fluctuations compared with a rigid aerofoil. This passive mechanism have the potential to mitigate gust-induced aerodynamic loads on small unmanned aerial vehicles.

BioFSI Lab

Bioinspired Fluid-Structure Interaction Laboratory

UNIVERSITY OF BIRMINGHAM